FENDER LAW VIOLATED

Washington and Georgetown Car
In Use Without Guards.

REPORTED TO THE POLICE

Inspector Bradshaw's Report of Non-Compliance with Fender Law for Destruction of Garbage Adopted by the Commissioners.

The report made August 14 by Inspector Bradshaw to the engineer department of the District government, to the effect that two street railways had not yet fully complied with the fender regulations was verified on Saturday, so far as the Washington and Georgetown line is concerned, notwithstanding the denial set up, and it is not disputed that the Columbia line is also deficient.

It was reported to the police on Saturday and the notice was repeated yesterday, that car No. 242 of the Washington and Georgetown line from Georgetown to the Navy Yard, was in service without the regulation equipment.

The grip had a pick-up attached, but was not a wheel guard, and in this condition was operated during both the days designated.

PENALTY THE ROAD INCUR.—The fine that might be imposed for this violation is $25 per day for each car so operated. It is not probable, however, that the matter will be pushed to prosecution. The Commissioners have thus far shown a disposition to be lenient and to give ample time for equipment, but stringent measures are to go into operation on the 1st of September. It was stated yesterday that the best terms possible with the owners of the system, and the decision of the Commissioners has not been made public, in order that Mr. Warfield might first come to an agreement.

CONTRACTOR WARFIELD NOTIFIED.—The chief engineer of the Commissioners was communicated to Contractor Warfield one week ago to-day, and it is understood to have been at his request that nothing was then said about the approval of the fender system. He that day announced that he had named a competent man to go to Washington and Philadelphia to investigate the workings of the several systems previously inspected by the Commissioners and the health officer, conveying the impression that it was for purposes of comparison.

It had been previously agreed, however, when the board and the health officer held their private conference with him, that there should be no publication made of the selection. He was informed that some but those present knew anything about it, and that nothing should be said here that would embarrass him.

The Anacostia anti-saloon people are preparing to renew the fight against the issuance of license upon the Mundell application. In their interests Attorney Shown, of the Anti-Saloon League, has filed a request with the excise board that further consideration of the application be postponed until the next monthly meeting of the board, when the opponents will be ready with a vigorous protest.

MUNDALL'S PURPOSE EXPLAINED.—The point sought to be gained by those who are advocating Mundall's interests is that after the saloon is once licensed the owner is exempted from the operation of that clause in the law that requires the signature of a majority of the residents in support of the application. This will enable Mundall to come to the excise board in November as an established saloon-keeper, and unless upon some other grounds he is turned down, the fact that he has not again secured the consent of the people will be so far to the renewal of his license.

The effort of the temperance people will be to demonstrate to the board that a majority of the people are opposed to having the saloon opened. They think they can show this state of facts beyond any doubt, and they will be ready with the facts at the next meeting of the board.

MORTUARY REPORT.—Record of deaths reported at the health office for the forty-eight hours ending at 1 o'clock p. m. yesterday.

White—Laura Allen, aged sixty-five years; Louis A. White, aged forty-five.

THE EXPERIENCE

Of All Who Become Patients of Dr. Walker

EXPRESSED BY ONE MAN

AN ENGINEER.

Mr. James W. King, an engineer, living at 2516 F street northwest, stated recently in an interview that for six years he had suffered with nervous and general debility. When he called on Dr. Walker he could not walk three yards without stopping to rest. He had shortness of breath, headache, constipation, dizziness, bad taste in the mouth, and all the dreadful symptoms that belong to this nervous disorder. Mr. King says further that he was almost entirely bedridden in Washington without receiving any benefit. At last, after having almost lost confidence in doctors, he determined to see Dr. Walker.

Dr. Walker's thorough examination and masterful manner so impressed him that he placed himself under the doctor's treatment. Almost at once he began to improve. All the dreadful symptoms were at once alleviated. After pursuing the course of treatment for a few months, Mr. King found himself entirely restored. His health, strength, and nerve energies at their very best.

This is only one more public statement added to that long list that Dr. Walker has cured.

Young or middle-aged men suffering from the effects of their own follies, vices or excesses, or men contemplating marriage who are conscious of any impairment or disqualification, or those who feel their youthful vigor and power declining, should consult Dr. Walker, who has been the means of restoring hundreds of such unfortunate to health, strength, and happiness.

His well-known sanitarium, at 1411 Pennsylvania ave., adjoining Willard's Hotel, is open daily for consultation and treatment. Office hours 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Wednesday and Saturday evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12.

Smith, aged one and a half; Walter E. McVicker, aged one; Ethel McAuley, aged four months; Mary Cherry, aged two months.

Bond, aged five; Jessie Weston, aged eight months; Edward Washington, aged eight months; Joseph Gordon, aged three months; Clarence Boyd, aged one and a half months; Jane Bevine, aged eighteen days; Henry O. Hall, aged seven days.

The Hotel Raleigh bar became yesterday transferred by the excise board to Theodore J. Talty, the hotel's present manager.

A Holiday Tragedy.

"I am sorry, and you have to play at the concert?"

"No," she replied, "the concert has been postponed."

"Then may I beg the pleasure of your company? I did not ask you before because of the concert engagement."

"Thanks. I shall enjoy it immensely."

"What a miserable failure that evening proved to be. I do not even know what the play was called. I was thinking all the time of my poor sick darling, and not of the acting of the woman who was playing the flower spray that was meant for Annie."

The words were still unspoken when my holidays arrived, and, tearing myself away from the two sisters, who stood at the gate and waved their hands, I went as long as I remained in sight, it was not with feelings of joyful anticipation that I threw myself to Hastings for rest and recreation.

Rest! Where could I find it? Not on the parade or pier amidst hundreds of couples promenading, as I had pictured Annie and myself doing; not on the beach, where the Ethiopian maids were eternally playing "Annie Laurie"; "Sweet Annie Rooney"; "Annie, Dear, I'm Cried Away." For a whole week I wandered aimlessly hither and thither. Then I could stand it no longer. So I wrote a long letter commencing "Darling," and pouring out the impassioned, pent-up love that came but once in a man's lifetime. I besought and beseeched her to take pity upon me, or my lifeless body should surge in the billows that beat relentlessly on the rocks of Beachy Head.

When I had finished I happened to catch sight of a photograph which I had purchased the previous day, representing one of the yachts preparing to start on their morning trip, with my own figure in a prominent position in the bows. "Ah," thought I, "I'll send that to Julia."

If it were possible I had now less rest than before, night or day, while waiting for the answer. Rising in the morning with a heavy heart and a burning brow, the other boarders would remark that the sea air did not seem to agree with me, while under the mask of assumed indifference there raged within me the fiercest volcano that ever burned in the heart of man.

At last the reply came, and, bounding up to the privacy of my own room, and trembling fingers I tore open the envelope which hid from me life or death.

"Dearest, I am yours forever. I cannot say your proposal was unexpected, for I have felt that you could mean nothing less, ever since that evening when you so openly expressed your preference for me by taking me to the theater."

"What! Where? Oh, heavens! I saw it all. I had placed them in the wrong envelopes, and sent the letter to Julia and the photograph to Annie! How I regretted and feared and tore my hair, until last night's exhaustion I sank into a chair and endeavored to finish reading the letter."

"Annie thanks you very much for the photo, and she desires me to tell you that yesterday Mr. Malcolm proposed to her and was accepted. We will have the two weddings on the same day. Won't that be nice, dear?"

"This was the last straw. Nice, indeed, for me to be married to a woman I did not care for, and at the same time to see the one I loved given to another man! I cannot remember what I did for the next hour or two beyond cursing my foolishness and swearing I would marry Julia. Then, when I became calmer, I saw an action for breach of promise looming. I thought of all my hard earned savings for years being swept away by a sympathetic jury to heal Julia's broken heart. There was no escape for me. She had my letter, which simply commenced, 'Darling,' and as no name was mentioned in it from beginning to end, it was possible that any body of intelligent men could be brought to believe that I intended it for Annie when I addressed the envelope to Julia? No, no. I must go through with it—I would marry her."

Yes, and I would teach her that this is the kind of creation, and that woman is but a helpmate, and not an equal, and so, in my married life, triumphantly assert those principles which I had held so long. Julia married me at the same time and place as Annie became Mrs. Malcolm. I now spend my evenings endeavoring to solve a difficult problem, and that is, why do they call woman the weaker sex?—Tid-Bits.
